Trustees Say They Were Unaware First ESAA Form Was Rejected

Trustees of the Jefferson Elementary School District said last week they were unaware that the original Emergency School Aid Act application was rejected.

The board's comments were included in a four paragraph release Jan. 15, the first official statement made on the recent controversy, involving the districts $775,000 ESAA grant.

The trustee explained that they had adopted a plan to reassign students for the 1974-75 school year by closing Jefferson School and moving the Fernando Rivera Intermediate School. This was part of the ESAA application transmitted to the Office for Civil Rights on Dec. 12, 1973 and has since been implemented in the district.

On Jan. 14, 1974, the OCR told the administration that the original plan did not indicate sufficient reduction of racial imbalance, meaning that the district was ineligible for the funding.

Trustees say they were never informed of this development.

The trustees statment goes on to say that two days later, on Jan. 16, a "revised" plan was submitted to OCR.

But the board claims it was not aware of any revised plan until notified by the OCR last December that the district had not complied with the revised plan on file at the OCR.

In response to initial inquiries by the board and the present administration, no one who was employed in the district at the time of the revision will take the responsiblity for this action," the statement read.

The trustees have referred the matter to San Mateo County District Attorney Keith Sorenson, and said they are awaiting a summary report from the OCR that will direct the board's further investigation.

According to the statement, the "board will take whatever action it deems necessary and appropriate to resolve the situation at that time."

Prior to the reading of the statment by Board President Beverly Forrester, the trustees voted 3-0 with two abstentions to approve the ESAA funds.

The motion, by Dorothy Adams, was to "accept the ESAA funds and to approve the program and budgetary allocations, with the understanding that it doesn't commit us to the implementation of the revision filed with the Equal Educational Opportunities Office Jan. 16, 1974."

The acceptance of the program would have been a routine matter if not for the question of the revised application.

Trustee Al Schwarzbach, who abstained in the vote along with James Cranna, said the approval should be held off until the situation could be cleared up. Schwarzbach pointed out that the board was not facing any deadline to approve the program, and that it could have continued without a vote.

GROUND BREAKING

Graders and heavy equipment work to prepare ground for construction of 168 single family homes near John F. Kennedy elementary school in East Daly City. Ramshackle buildings housing horses can be seen in foreground.

Blossom Valley Is Blooming

By FRANK LaPIERRE

Graders are already working at the site of the proposed Blossom Valley housing tract near the John F. Kennedy school.

When they are through, some 168 single family residences will start to bloom where once vegetables grew and horses roamed.

There are two stables in the area adjacent to the development.

City Manager David Rowe said there would likely be no change in either one's status "for the time being."

But observers feel a stable located just off Guadalupe Canyon Parkway, west of the elementary school, will be razed once the land is annexed to Daly City.

Part of the Blossom Valley properties are already in Daly City, with the remainder in unincorporated Colma — county lands.

The JFK school is in the county and would be agreeable to annexation into Daly City, Rowe informed the council Monday.

There had been some talk that when the Blossom Valley development was completed it would tax the school and, therefore, the developers — Eastside Associates — should perhaps pay for an extra classroom at the school site.

A spokesman for the developer responded by arguing the district already had a number of empty classrooms scattered around the community, with the student population annually declining.

There is another stable located above the development on a knoll near Reservoir Three.

About 100 horses are stabled there, it was explained.

Roland Young, owner of the stable, said at an earlier meeting on the subject that the area adjacent to the Blossom Valley development — in an almost inaccessible canyon — is a haven for lovers and dope users.

This canyon will be made into a nine acre park, Director of Community Services Don Flemming said.

It might even have a modern horse stable located there, it was learned.

Initially, the Blossom Valley plans called for a commercial strip along Guadalupe Canyon-East Market Street.

This was omitted in current plans acceptable to the Planning Commission, it was revealed Monday.

Valley Development: No Financial Help for JESD

The Jefferson Elementary School District apparently will not receive any financial help in housing children whose families would move into a proposed 168 home development in the Guadalupe Canyon Area.

It was bad news for the district, which was hoping that a development fee be put on the Blossom Valley project that would go towards either leasing or renting portable classrooms to take care of the expected enrollment crunch.

The Blossom Valley development, which still has to be approved by the Daly City Council, is located between Price Street and Guadalupe Canyon Parkway over to Florence Street. Children who would reside in that

Critical Audit Report

DC Finance Director Resigns

Daly City City Hall watchers today are trying to tie together the resigantion of Finance Director Jack Massen and a highly critical audit report presented last week by Richard Dwyer.

Dwyer has been the city's auditor for several years.

At a Jan. 13 council meeting, Dwyer gave city officials his rundown on the annual audit — some six weeks after it was due.

"It took us a lot longer to do the job then it should have," Dwyer said.

The schedule for the audit report, according to statutes governing such matters, is an initial report on "certain items" by Aug. 30, followed by a completed report by Nov. 19, and forwarding to the council by Nov. 30.

Asked why the audit was so late this year — the second year in a row it has been late — Dwyer responded:

"I think the finance department went full blast on their computers and forgot the small day-to-day matters. (The finance dept.) never should have gone 100 per cent (on the computer system). Instead they should have gone piecemeal."

But the city is in good financial shape, Dwyer said.

"There is nothing wrong . . . no malfeasance or malpractice," he said.

The computers looked like the answer to a growing city's needs three years ago when the idea first was presented.

While finance department employes hurried to feed the computers everything from scavenger bills to water bills, payrolls and the myriad other paperwork needs of the county's second largest city, the routine matters, such as bank balances, daily reconciliations and such, were shunted aside, the accountant said.

Shortly after Dwyer made known the contents of his report, Massen handed in his latter of resignation to City Manager David Rowe, effective March 15.

Massen's letter avoided any mention of the negative reports he has received from Dwyer in the recent years.. Instead, it centered around his contributions to the city during his four-year tenure.

"I believe I have made constructive contributions to the government of Daly City and the better management of its financial resources," Massen wrote.

There was no reason given for the sudden resignation.

In his announcement of Jan. 16, Rowe said there were many improvements made in the financial management of the city, "including the placing of city records on computer," during Massen's tenure. —By Frank La Pierre

Youth Held For Reckless Driving

A 17-year-old Daly City youth was jailed at Hillcrest Juvenile Center for engaging in a speed contest, failure to yield to a red light and siren, and reckless driving.

Officer Mike Scott, investigator on the case, did not identify the boy.

Scott said the chase began shortly after 11 p.m. at the corner of Skyline and John Daly Drive when he spotted the young driver allegedly speeding southbound on Skyline.

He chased the car at an undisclosed speed for three miles — to the intersection of Skyline and Palmetto in Pacifica — before the vehicle spun out.

No one was injured in the incident, Scott said.

Mrs. Collum Loses Appeal To County Education Board

By BOB PETERSON

Chuck Collum can't go back to the county-operated Child Development Center in Daly City.

Mrs. Jacqueline Collum, mother of the 10-year-old victim of Batten's Disease, Thursday night lost her appeal to keep her son in the special school during a hearing before the County Board of Education.

School officials last October, citing the deadly Batten's Disease illness that has a degenerating effect on the physical and mental capacities and causes blindness and eventually death, said Chuck's condition was deteriorating to the point where he could no longer participate in the program.

Trustees Thursday night unanimously upheld that action of the admission and evaluation committee as being "in the best interest of the child."

Mrs. Collum, of 213 Hillside, Pacifica, disagreed in October and disagreed Thursday night. She said that as long as her son participates, even on a minor scale, and is of no danger to himself or others he should have the right to an education, regardless of how limited it might be.

This was the gist of what turned out to be an unsuccessful presentation made before the board in Redwood City by her attorney, Sterling L. Ross Jr. He made three main points:

• That the only issue before the board was whether Chuck had a legal right to be in school, pointing out that the center was a special educational facility designed especially for uniquely handicapped children.

• That the admission and evaluation committee had not adequately shown that, in fact, Chuck was either unable to participate or that he was a danger to himself or others.

• That, because of the newness of the program, there was no established appeals procedure and as such, the hearing was, to his mind not legal.

Hearing Officer Lee Port, of the district attorney's office, said "unless some judge says the state should step in, this hearing procedure will be held up."

She said she had contacted the legal counsel to the State Board of Education and was told that although a normal procedure would be a hearing before the state board, and since no such procedure has been established, the local hearing would be proper.

"At least there's some semblance of due process," she said.

Ross said he would have to discuss any further action with Mrs. Collum. A possibility would be an appeal to the state board. Mrs. Collum, however, feels delays do nothing to help her son.

The mother, who has lost one daughter to the deadly disease at age 12, and has two other daughters, ages 9 and 15, with the illness, was told after the hearing by County Superintendent of Schools J. Russell Kent that the county would do all in its power to help her.

Kent said that if she found a public school that would accept Chuck, he would see if something could be worked out to have this county pay whatever costs might be incurred.

Mrs. Collum, who said she believes her son is being ousted because of her criticism of the school and teachers, said she was certain a similar school in another Bay Area county would accept Chuck without question.

She said she intends to pursue this avenue.

The hearing was scheduled as an executive session. Mrs. Collum waived the secret session right, preferring to have the issue publicly aired.

Trustees were presented a record of "performance and observation" by the school staff from the time

US Marshal May Study JESD Case

The United States Marshal's Office has been asked to enter the current turmoil rocking the Jefferson Elementary School District over who may have falsified an application for some $774,000 in federal monies.

Wednesday, Trustees Dorothy Adams and Beverly Forrester asked U.S. Marshal Glen Robinson to assist in an investigation of the case, the Post has learned.

Robinson, in addition to being a U.S. Marshal assigned to the San Francisco office, is a Marin County School Board member.

There was some indication the issue, stemming from an application submitted last year for federal funds, may end up in the U.S. attorney general's office.

The matter had been brought to the JESD's legal counsel — Dist. Atty. Keith Sorenson — who advised trustees it was not a criminal case.

Mrs. Forrester said she subsequently had been advised the case was a civil matter "and I intend to carry on a vigorous investigation of (this case)."

The money was funded under the government's Emergency School Aid Act (ESAA) last year, after the initial application, filed in 1973, had been shelved by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

A subsequent "revised" application was accepted by HEW.

But this revision, sent under the signature of then-Supt. Keith Breon, a former county deputy district attorney, did not have the approval of the district's school board, it was learned.

This revision contained plans for massive desegregation of the district, to be implemented with busing throughout the community.

A majority of the board repeatedly has been opposed to "busing for the sake of busing" and the high costs of operating such a program.

If the full intent of the revised application were carried out, the district would have to contract additional buses. Added cost could exceed $100,000 tax dollars a year, Mrs. Adams explained.

Trustee David Parker, expressing frustration over "the person or persons" who filed the misleading application, said at the time the grant was initially applied for, "We felt it was a great idea, because it would bring good education to the children, rather than having to (bus) children to education."

Chamber Raps BART Parking Fee

The Greater Daly City Chamber of Commerce Thursday sent a strongly-worded letter to the Bay Area Rapid Transit District opposing any parking fee or special surcharge for passengers boarding at the Daly City station.

The letter, signed by president Al Vial and Peter Markovich, general manager, labeled attempts at imposition of the fees to "vindictiveness because San Mateo County decided to keep out of the system."

San Franciscans living in the Ocean View area, Park Merced and Sunset areas also use the Daly City station, the letter points out.

All these riders have contributed to traffic congestion on Daly City streets and traffic jams in and around the BART parking lot, Vial said.

"Incidentally, some thought should be given to the energy crisis," the letter suggested. "Hundreds of additional cars might be driven on the streets and highways with your proposed 300 per cent increase in fares, thus increasing the pollution."

A BART engineering committee member suggested Daly City station be singled out for a special surcharge amounting to an additional $1 to ride BART downtown, and a $3 parking charge at the new garage being built with Daly City and state monies.

Daly City put up some $300,000 in taxpayers' money from gas taxes for "seed" money to build the multi-level BART garage.

Before BART can charge parking fees at the garage, the approval of Daly City and the state must be given.

Vial and Markovich criticized BART for "the destruction of over 150 homes" to build the station after the district came into San Mateo County using its powers of condemnation.

This move "eliminated 10 years of tax revenues from those homes (that Daly City would have realized;," the letter pointed out.

"It is hard to understand the present thinking of your

Gloomy Employment Picture Seen

By RICK SULLIVAN
(Last of a Series)

"A much different kind of unemployment" is sweeping the country, according to a leading Stanford University economist, who says the high jobless rate will level off this summer.

But, even if the national unemployment rate improves, experts in San Mateo County forecast a gloomy employment picture, "if 40,000 jobs are not created in the next five years to handle the anticipated increase in the county work force."

In an interview with The Post, Dr. George Leland Bach, economics professor at Stanford, special consultant to the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System and to the secretary of the treasury, offered a poignant assessment of the rising unemployment situation, its causes and possible solutions.

Essentially, according to Dr. Bach, as the government fights to halt inflation through various measures, unemployment rises. In the past the government could lower the rate of inflation, while accepting a moderate increase in unemployment. Inflation and unemployment were mutually exclusive.

Today, however, unlike any other time in our history, the country is experiencing inflation and unemployment simultaneously, "And we (economists) don't have the answer to how to deal with both.

"It's a damn worrisome situation," said Dr. Bach. "We've never had to deal with this kind of thing before."

According to Dr. Bach, the roots of current inflation and unemployment problems were planted after the 1969-70 recession. To bring the country out of its downward trend the economy was pumped up too rapidly, faster than it could sustain itself. Too many dollars were released into the economy and "we had too many dollars chasing too few goods."

The situation was aggravated further, according to Bach, by labor union's demand for more inflated dollars for their members and the increase of prices by the unionized businesses.

Dr. Bach says "blame" for the current situation can be put on: The White House, the Federal Reserve System, the treasury and Congress which all wanted economic recovery too fast; the labor unions for asking for excessive wage increases; businesses for pricing their products too high; and on the general public, which over the years has learned to want more and more in increased aid.

"All of us are at fault, and we are seeing the combined result," said Dr. Bach.

Although some workers have been thrown out of work as a consequence of the government's tight budget policy in its effort to stem inflation, Dr. Bach says the "oil situation" is the immediate cause for unemployment in the auto industry.

"For the first quarter of 1974 the increase in unemployment was solely because of layoffs in the auto industry. But as the recession spread throughout the economy toward the end of the year layoffs began in other industries," said Dr. Bach.

As for causes of the widespread unemployment in the building industry, Dr. Bach cited the federal government's tight money policy and the lack of lendable funds in the savings and loan institutions.

Dr. Bach explains: "In time of inflation, inves- tors tend to put their money where it will bring the highest return. Investors want a return which keeps up with the inflation rate.

"Consequently, many people were taking their money out of the savings and loans and the institutions were running out of money to lend for building.

"Also, I think the building slowdown is a result of the overbuilding on the part of the industry. Up until recently we were building more homes than were needed. The country is down to about 1 million starts a year now," said Dr. Bach.

Dr. Bach admits that the government faces a "painful dilemma in its effort to stop inflation and rising unemployment: "It can either put more money into the system to validate the excess income claims, thereby temporarily avoiding unemployment, but feeding inflation, or it can hold down spending to check the rise in inflation at the cost of accepting recession and growing unemployment."

President Ford and the Federal Reserve Board, according to Dr. Bach, have come up with what they hope is an answer to the dilemma. They have decided to feed "purchasing power" into the economy, but gradually so inflation will not rise and a "modest unemployment rate" will be maintained.

To aid the unemployed, Dr. Bach said, jobs will be created and benefits will be increased "with the hope that these measures will not set off more inflation."

Dr. Bach is concerned over the current unemployment picture in this country, but quickly points out the difference in the jobless rate now and during the great depression.

"In the 1930s, the bulk of the unemployed were the sole family wage earners. Today we have a 6.5 per cent unemployment rate, and about 3.8 per cent of the prime age males, basic wage earners, are jobless.

"We have a different kind of unemployment; it's mostly women and youth who are unemployed now. I don't see a high level of prime-age males being laid off in the near future. The chances that we will experience a depression of the same proportion of the 1930s is highly improbable," Dr. Bach said.

Experts in San Mateo County worry over rising unemployment today, but express even greater concern about the situation over the next five years.

Bud Bostwick, president of the San Mateo County Development Association, comments:

"Even if we are able to bring down the unemployment rate nationally, San Mateo County faces a very high unemployment rate itself, if more jobs are not created to absorb the anticipated number of new workers coming into the labor force."

"If we do not create another 40,000 new jobs in the next five years, we are either going to see a high jobless rate here, or more and more residents will be leaving this country to find work, Bostwick warned.

Bostwick maintains, and the Employment and Development Department agrees, that the bulk of the unemployed in this county are those in the building trades.

"We have 11,600 construction workers in this county and many of them are suffering, not only because of the tight money situation, but because of environmental pressures, which are causing delays in construction of needed projects.

"These delays are forcing investors to go elsewhere to build, and if this continues, we are going to see more than construction workers unable to find jobs.

"I'm not saying that there hasn't been mistakes (in planning projects), but you just can't stop development altogether. I think an economic report should be considered before an environmental impact report to keep the economy of a given area stable," Bostwick declared.

The County Development Association notes that 35 per cent of the estimated job opportunities are dependent on the orderly development of four major projects: the expansion of San Francisco International Airport; the commencement of development of the Crocker Hills in the North County; the completion of the expansion program at Pillar Point Harbor; and the development of Half Moon Bay Properties' holdings as planned.

"I'm all for orderly development," said Bostwick, "but we just can't stop devel- opment. We must have it to grow and to keep people employed."

community would attend John F. Kennedy or the Colma Schools.

As of now, though, the district would have to absorb the pupil impact.

Trustees were also surprised to learn that the Environmental Impact Report for the development only anticipated 75 students.

Supt. Herbert Hemington has said 168 homes, as proposed in Blossom Valley, would mean at least 168 children, if based on the estimate of one child per home. However, Hemington feels that figure is conservative, since generally the number of pupils would be based on about 1.7 children per home.

Trustee Al Schwarzbach called the 75 children estimate an "unrealistic figure" and volunteered to appear before the City Council to present the district's case. Schwarzbach said he would request a resolution that a requirement be included in the sub-division ordinance that would force a developer to give consideration to school services as a consequence of development.

In another matter related to the Blossom Valley development, the trustees had been asked their opinions on zoning for the area and for the annexation of JKF School to Daly City.

Board members felt that the zone classification was up to the city, though they expressed concern with the effect that the zone determination might have with increased traffic flow and whether there would be need for any traffic signals in the area.

As for the annexation of JFK, which is now located in unincorporated land, the trustees said the move would be advantageous to the district because the school could then be served by Daly City authorities.

The decision against the development fee and the "low" estimate of the number of children in Blossom Valley has now raised additional concern for the board over the proposed Crocker Tract housing development on Reservoir Hill.

Plans call for between 490 and 1,000 housing and apartment units.

According to Hemington, a 500 home development there would necessitate the district to build another school for those children. Hemington said the children that resided there would normally attend Vista Grande, George Washington or Crocker, but that those schools are already filled to capacity.

Although the Reservoir Hill project is still in the "preliminary stages," according to Daly City Planner John Walker, Hemington said the trustees and administration must be involved at this point because of the impact it would have on the district.

Transit Dispute Stirs Council

A routine calendar item brought before the Daly City Council Monday sparked a short, but lively discussion on the city's bus service provided by Northgate Transit Co.

It was an announcement that the State Public Utilities Commission would hold hearings into operations of Northgate, and the request of a new company—Daly City Transit Systems, Inc.—to obtain permission to operate in the city.

The council expressed its general unhappiness over the service now being provided by Northgate.

Daly City Transit Systems Inc. was scheduled to appear before the PUC in Daly City Tuesday at 10 a.m. seeking a permit to operate within the city.

Northgate thus far has successfully protected its franchise, issued by the PUC, and continues to ruh routes using a limited number of buses and drivers between Daly City and San Francisco points.

But the council is unhappy over the waiting time and condition of some of the vehicles.

The council, however, refused to side with either company in the current dispute, taking a wait-and-see posture.

Northgate has had an on-going dispute with a newly formed company, Daly City Transit Systems, Inc., formed by bus drivers who drove off the job with their privately owned buses several weeks ago.

The matter of providing Daly City Transit a permit to operate in the city has come before the PUC and is now before the San Mateo County Superior Court on a cease and desist order issued at Northgate's request.

Northgate's attorney, George Corey, of San Bruno, said Daly City Transit had been operating their vehicles in Daly City before the court order was issued.

Corey, in his complaint to the court, also stated that Daly City Transit was threatening Northgate's bus drivers and passengers.

Daly City Transit countered that Northgate is not providing adequate service to residents of the city because of the limited number of bases and drivers available since drivers walked off the job last year.

Chuck entered the program July 1, 1973, until he was "admitted" at the end of October, 1974.

At that time the admission and evaluation committee unanimously agreed Chuck's enrollment should be terminated because of "his progressive inability to participate in the program."

The staff cited specifically the fact Chuck has "grand mal seizures" and they were concerned for his safety and for the safety of other children, if the staff spends too much time with Chuck.

On Dec. 5, 1974, the committee reaffirmed the October decision.

William Herbig, assistant superintendent of special education, said the center "is not the proper place for Chuck." He suggested "some type of hospital environment" as being in the child's best interest.

Dr. Goldon Paulson, a member of the committee, said, "I felt it (keeping Chuck in school) was approaching institutional abuse of the child.

"I felt the staff, out of kindness, had over extended themselves. He (Chuck) was the only child that ever raised any staff anxiety on handling a child with convulsions."

Head teacher Gary Hirsch told of one instance where, he said, it took three teachers to control Chuck when he had what was referred to as a psychosomatic motor seizure.

Hirsch said such activity took the teachers away from nine other youngsters, and also was upsetting Chuck's sister, K.C., who was in another room.

"I don't think they are (psychosomatic motor) seizures;" said Mrs. Collum. "He's frustrated. I handle him at home. I take him shopping. My 9-year-old daughter can take care of him."

She paused. "He has a degenerative condition. Sometimes you really don't know what to do."

The letter also carried a thinly-masked threat.

"Knowing your (BART'S) desire to continue the system to the airport and eventually down the Peninsula, we are certain that you would not like to antagonize these people.

"The extension of the system will occur only by establishing a better rapport with the people and civic organizations of this area."

The letter ended with Vial and Markovich suggesting BART's image "would be better served if it would project a positive, rather than a negative attitude."

Former DC Auto Parts Dealer Sues

A former Daly City auto parts dealer is suing his former supplier for nearly $5 million for allegedly causing him to lose his business by refusing to sell him parts after he returned too many defective batteries.

A suit for Alfred H. Stuetzle has been filed in the United States District Court in San Francisco by attorney Joseph Gughemetti of the Burlingame firm of Jackson, Turner and Mulcare.

The suit was filed Oct. 23, and Monday was the date set for American Parts System Inc., the defendant, to respond to the various claims of damages to Stuetzle and alleged violations of the federal Sherman Antitrust Act.

A spokesman for the San Francisco law firm of Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison, who represent American Parts Systems in this case, said his firm had filed a response.

He said the response "denies all charges, and American Parts Systems contends the suit is without merit and intends to prove that in court."

He said there was no further comment.

In the complaint, Stuetzle says he operated the King Auto Supply store in Daly City, from 1969 to 1974.

In the beginning, he said, he bought only a few supplies from American Parts System, or APS.

Later, APS became his sole supplier, but when Stutzle returned too many defective batteries, which had been returned to him by his customers, said the complaint, APS refused to supply any more parts, batteries, or tires.

Stutzle said this has caused him to go out of business, has brought him and his family mental anguish and economic hardship, distress, and humiliation.

Plans for Pool Move Ahead

Milton Johnson, a Palo Alto architect, has been selected by a joint city-high school district committee to design a swimming pool at Pacifica's Oceana High School. His appointment was confirmed Monday night by the Pacifica City Council.

Meanwhile, a fight appeared to be brewing over a proposed eight-court tennis complex at Terra Nova High School.

Both projects are being 40 per cent financed by a $550,000 city bond issue, passed last November.

The Jefferson Union High School District will pay the remainder.

Councilman Stan Farber alleged "We're being aced out of a couple of courts."

The tennis courts, he claimed were to be part of Terra Nova's third increment. The city offered 40 per cent financing in order to expedite construction of the courts. The JUHSD representatives now say that the courts will cost so much that the number either must be slashed from eight to six, or the city must pay more money.

Farber asked that Mayor Aubrey Lumley set up a meeting with John Sloan, president of the school board, as well as with City Manager Don Weidner and Asst. Supt. Floyd Gonella, to work out a solution.

"I'd love to meet with you, but I don't think I can keep my temper," Farber declared.

Weidner cautioned, however, that "the possibility of either the tennis courts or the pool costing more than the original estimates are, at this time, pure conjecture."

There has not been an architect's estimate yet, he said.

Meanwhile, the council adopted a resolution to the school district urging that the special ad hoc committee of city and school representatives, set up to hire the architect, see the project through to completion.

Spaghetti Dinner Set

Abraham Lincoln School in Daly City will have an International Spaghetti Dinner at the school, 101 Lake Merced Blvd., at 6 p.m. Jan. 30.

A talent show by children of the school will follow the dinner. Proceeds will go to student activities.

Pacifica Seeks Road Improvement Funds

By JACK BIK

Pacifica councilmen approved applications for over a million dollars in state and federal funds for highway improvements and added employes at a meeting last week.

They okayed a listing of seven projects for improving dangerous roads and intersections. The traffic project is part of a three-year program under the Federal Aid Urban System Program, Director of Public Works Norman C. Rubel told the council.

Pacifica's projects along with those from all other cities in the county, will be considered by a county-wide committee composed of other directors of public works and county staff. Federal funds would pay for 83 per cent of the costs.

Major project is the $200,000 widening and improvement of Linda Mar Boulevard, between Adobe Drive and Sheila Lane. It would end a major bottleneck and safeguard pedestrians by widening the pavement to 57 feet, building curbs, gutters, sidewalks, storm drains and raising landscaped medians with left turn lanes.

Three projects would be on foggy Skyline Boulevard, providing improved signalization, left-turn lanes and lighting at Skyline's intersections with King Drive-Glencourt Way, Hickey Boulevard and Manor Drive. Cost would total $320,000.

Some $95,000 would be spent to improve Sharp Park Road four ways: Repaving the roadway with non-skid pavement; restriping the roadway from three to two lanes, with a six foot median; building a drainage channel along the north side so as to eliminate water sheeting across the road during rains, and installing a street lighting system. About 50 accidents a year occur on Sharp Park Road.

Councilmen added a sixth project, involving State Route 1 and Fassler Drive. The council wants a double left-turn lane from the Coast Highway into the recently built Fassler Drive. Left turn traffic now blocks Coast Highway during rush hour.

The council also approved a seventh project, signalization of State Route 1 and Crespi Drive. However, the State Department of Transportation has asked the city to participate in the project, thus raising its priority.

Additional city employes would be hired under Title 6. "Comprehensive Employement and Training Act," recently adopted to combat growing unemployment. The city would hire through the county.

Councilmen agreed to pay up to $12,390 to make up the difference between the $10,000 ceiling that the Federal Government will pay each employe and the amount some of the more technical jobs will actually cost the city. The Feds also are paying up to $12,500 to fringe benefits.

"I don't know if we'll get all 18 employes we need, or none." City Manager Don Weidner commented Tuesday. All of them are needed by the city, he said.

Councilman Stan Farber announced that after the one-year allocation period from Washington expires, he will fight to keep on three firefighters. Mayor Aubrey Lumley pledged to make a stand for a budget and research officer. Council member Janice Fulford said neither of those choices was her priority. She is known to favor technicians for the planning department.

Others on the employment list include: Three park maintenance men, two custodians, two public works trainees, three police cadets, a recreation registration clerk, a fire department secretary and a property management technician.

Total cost of the one-year employment program would be $209,760.

During her six weeks at the Air Training Command's Lackland AFB, Tex., she studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

Very Young, Old Have Most Needs for Housing

The very young and the old among Pacifica's citizens appear to have the greatest needs, discussion Wednesday night indicated.

City officials said the city might obtain funds under the recently passed Housing and Community Development Act to finance civic projects.

Under the act, a series of public meetings first must be held to determine what the public feels to be its greatest community needs.

The emphasis Wednesday, during the second of a series of meetings on the subject, was the need for a day-care center and on social services for the elderly.

Conducting the meetings is Evans Cantrell of a Berkeley firm reportedly expert in obtaining federal grants.

Three more public meetings will be held. The next one is to be at 7:30 p.m. today at the Terra Nova Auditorium. The others will be 7:30 p.m., Jan. 29 in Vallemar School multi-purpose room, and 7:30 p.m. Jan. 30 in the City Council chambers at the sewer treatment plant.

The last meeting will summarize all of the citizen input obtained.

Cantrell's firm will prepare a formal application, upon which the City Council will hold two public hearings.

Meanwhile, applications are being received for a Housing Task Force Committee, to monitor the program.

The first year of the program is expected to be one of study. The second and third year of the three-year program will be years of action.

Purpose of the community development plan will be to cut out or prevent slums or blight, to provide housing for low and moderate income persons, and to provide better community facilities and services for middle and low income groups.

Housing Element Adopted

Adoption of a housing element as part of the San Mateo County General Plan was approved Thursday by the Board of Supervisors.

The housing element, prepared by the County Planning Department, cites a shortage of 9,000 housing units in the county for low and moderate income residents and establishes a set of goals to correct the situation.

The county already has approved one of the plan's recommendations — that it prepare a community housing and development plan by which it will receive some $2.7 million a year in federal funding.

As a result of last week's action, the County Legal Aid Society will drop a suit it had filed against the county for failure to adopt a housing element.

Other recommendations of the housing element are that the Board of Supervisors:

• Organize a county agency to effectively coordinate long-term housing community development activities.

• Establish a housing and community development citizens' committee to work with county and city staffs in order to develop recommendations and action programs.

• Continue to support environmental impact reporting procedures for impact of public projects on the quality of residential areas.

Another recommendation in the plan is that the Regional Planning Committee establish a program aimed at the dispersion of low and moderate income housing throughout the county, rather than concentrate such units in existing low and moderate income areas.

SSF Payment Protested

Attorneys wrangled for more than an hour on a protest of an added payment for a street assessments district at the South San Francisco City Council meeting Wednesday night.

Councilmen finally overruled the protest. The owner represents 54 per cent of the property involved.

Charles Keller, representing Dr. William Lewis, owner of the Camino East apartment complex, presented the protest.

The assessment district was formed to finance construction of Antoinette Lane, over a former private road.

Attorney Kenneth Jones, representing the assessment district, said through a mistake when the district was formed, the road was estimated to be worth about $3500. Later, it was found that although the paved portions of the private road was 26 feet wide, its actual right of way totaled 67 feet wide.

Keller said lengthy negotiations with a district appraiser resulted in an agreement to pay Dr. Lewis $40,000 for the right of way. Soon after the agreement was reached, however, Dr. Lewis received a notice of assessment from the district for $22,800.

Keller said he believes that all of that money should come from a new shopping center which benefited from Antoinette Lane. Keller said Camino East did not benefit. Dr. Lewis paid the original assessment of some $10,000.

In other action, the council:

Authorized hiring of a South San Francisco engineering firm, Resources Engineering and Management, for realignment of Mission Road. The project is estimated at $300,000. The engineer's fee is not to exceed $7,300.

• Awarded a bid for purchase of a four-wheel street sweeper to Nixon-Egli Equipment Co. of Hayward, for $29,949, including trade-in amount of $1,200 for old sweeper.

• Authorized bids for an emergency exit and stairway on the third floor of City Hall.

SSF Buys U.S. Made Buses

South San Francisco city councilmen Wednesday night voted to buy seven diesel transit coaches from Lee Petersen Motors of San Leandro, for $227,267.

The council rejected the low bid of $178,878, offered by a South San Francisco firm, Mercedes-Benz of North America Inc.

Richard Lustig, bus field manager for Mercedes-Benz, protested the staff recommendation to reject the low bid.

Lustig said Mercedes had been first with diesel, has buses running throughout the world, and builds its buses from the ground up, rather than from components.

Some of the original diesel buses made by the firm are still on their original engines, exceeding 500,000 miles, he said. In addition, the vehicles would be available immediately, Lustig said.

He said the city had not tested the San Leandro firm's buses.

Frank J. Addiego, director of public services, explained that he recommended rejection of the Mercedes-Benz because the bid specifications called for 23 passengers, a 130 horsepower engine, 76 inches headroom, 20-inches aisle width, 13,000 pounds rear axle capacity, and warning systems for low oil pressure and hot engine.

The Mercedes-Benz bus would provide seats for just 16 passengers, 94 horsepower, 74½ inches headroom, 17½ inches aisle width, 7,275 pounds rear axle capacity and no warning system for low oil pressure or hot engine.

City Manager Ed Alario said he had tested the Mercedes bus and found it somewhat cramped. (He is a large person.) He and Addiego also said Mercedes provided a smaller brake and no brake retarder, for slowing up on downhill runs.

Controversy also was raised over the staff's recommendation of diesel engines over propane. Addiego claimed that maintenance is cheaper for diesels, operating costs are less than half, and diesel engines last three times longer.

Amedeo Sola, a local resident who cited his experience in all kinds of engines, said diesels were high compression engines and would prove more troublesome.

Ex-Planner's Surprise Visit

SSF Council Tables Condo Ordinance

A proposed ordinance regulating condominiums was unexpectedly tabled Jan. 14 by the South San Francisco Planning Commission.

The move came as a surprise, since the commissioners already had held three meetings, including two extensive study sessions, to draw up a draft ordinance that seemed satisfactory to them. As result of those meetings, the public hearing was set, with the commission considering to recommend approval of the ordinance to the City Council.

But Joe Stevenson, chairmen of the Condominium Committee of the Associated Building Industry, successfully lobbied for a delay until his group's objections to some sections of the proposed ordinance could be discussed further with city officials.

Stevenson received a curious assist from recently fired Assistant City Planner Surendra Amin, whose questioning of a procedural matter in developing the ordinance led to a sudden decision to table.

Amin, who is appealing his Dec. 26 firing by the city, addressed the commission and staff after Stevenson had sketched his objections of the ordinance and asked for the postponement.

During the course of Stevenson's comments, at least two commissioners, Chairman J. O. Mathewson and Roberta Teglia, had appeared ready to okay the ordinance. The only other commissioner responding to Stevenson, Wesley Slade, was willing to hold off a decision.

Amin's appearance before the Planning Commission, as well as his contention that the procedures were not followed properly, momentarily stunned the commissioners and staff.

Hale, who has been critical of Amin's job performance, twice began to inquire into his motives for bringing up the matter, but was interrupted by Mathewson.

First, Hale started saying, "I would like to ask why Mr. Amin . . ." but Mathewson cut him off in mid-sentence.

Then Hale tried again, asking, "What is the intent here by the former staff employee . . ."

This time, the chairman quickly glanced at the other commissioners and before Hale could finish, said the motion was tabled and turned immediately to the agenda's next item.

Even without the Amin episode, though, the commissioners still might have sided with Stevenson's request.

Stevenson, who is also vice president of KCA Consulting Engineers, objected to the ordinance's "covenants, conditions and restrictions (CC & R's)," which he said would cost a developer over $5,000 before even knowing whether the project would be approved. The CC & R's is the declaration of powers, obligations, responsibilities, duties, rights and restrictions which are binding upon all the owners of the condominium and provide for its orderly governing.

Stevenson's other objections included the extent of information required on a tentative map for each project and a physical property report.

Stevenson said his committee is preparing its own model condominium ordinance, and asked for a 30 day delay.

Commissioner Slade concurred. He called this "an important document" and said there had been little public comment at the other three meetings." Slade said providing those interested a chance to participate now would remove much of the criticism that could come later on.

And Hale, though not completely agreeing with Stevenson's points, said there wasn't any real urgency in getting the ordinance passed. Hale suggested that he could go over Stevenson's objections, and then report back to the commission at its Jan. 28 meeting.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Teglia argued that the commissioners already had three meetings on the ordinance, had advertised the public hearing, and that the local newspapers had run stories on it. "Mr. Stevenson has had a chance to bring his people to us," she said.

Mathewson at first opposed tabling the matter, and pointed out that the proposed ordinance would still have to go to the city council where more hearings would be held.

31 Ways to Cut the Budget

Thirty-one ways to cut the school budget were proposed Thursday at the South San Francisco Unified School Board meeting.

The cuts were in the final report of the 27-member Community Finance Study Committee headed by John Penna. The report also included four recommendations for future action, and a blistering minority report which opposed some of the most-favorted proposals.

The first four slashes involved personnel.

The one would freeze all hiring, for a possible $200,000 saving.

"The present staff should be able to take care of all the educational needs of the students," stated the report.

Others, in order of priority, included:

✓ Increase class size 1½ to two pupils per class.

✓ Eliminate student transportation. Perhaps city transportation might handle this.

• Eliminate administrative expenses, such as conventions, workshops, books, subscriptions and mileage.

✓ Eliminate data processing for report cards, class lists and schedules.

✓ Eliminate after-school athletics that must be district financed. The Recreation Department might enlarge its role.

✓ Eliminate paid detention.

✓ Eliminate accelerated classes.

✓ Eliminate mileage.

✓ Eliminate the drug abuse program.

✓ Reduce the work year of building administrators to 10 months over the school year and reduce pay.

✓ Eliminate cafeterias.

✓ Eliminate subject-area coordinators.

• Counselors, vice-principals and administrators teach one period a day. This would augment the tightened teaching staff.

✓ Salary freeze for all school employes.

✓ Eliminate reading improvement. Early childhood education might take care of it. In junior and senior high schools English classes can concentrate more on reading.

✓ Eliminate "English as a Second Language" program. A volunteer parent program might be started.

✓ Eliminate elementary music program; wiat until junior high.

✓ Eliminate aides in special education.

✓ Reduce nursing hours by 50 per cent. Many of their services can be done by secretaries.

✓ Eliminate department heads.

✓ Eliminate curriculum specialists.

• Re-adjust number of school administrators to the formula of one per elementary and two per junior and senior high schools.

✓ Eliminate Senior High Opportunity.

✓ Eliminate Junior High Opportunity.

• Eliminate lib ✓ Trim capital outlay, books budget, by 50 per cent.

✓ Reduce district office personnel by one assistant superintendent.

✓ Reduce psychology services.

Coast Council Refuses to Buy City Cars Locally

The Pacifica City Council rejected a plea last week from Fred Peterson of Miller & Petersen auto dealers to buy 11 new cars locally, instead of through the California Highway Patrol.

Mayor Aubrey Lumley supported Petersen, saying that the city should buy locally whenever it can. It is more important for Pacifica to have the money circulating in Pacifica than in Sacramento, he said.

Petersen said his cars, Plymouths, fulfilled the bid specifications and were virtually the same cars as the CHP's Dodges. He admitted his bid was about $1000 higher than the CHP's price. He asserted, however, that by cutting out the air conditioning costing $356 each, he would save the city over $2,000 on the entire purchase.

Air conditioning is unnecessary in Pacifica. Petersen said. It uses more gasoline and would result in higher maintenance costs.

Jackie Brockway, city buyer, said the CHP was somehow able to buy the air conditioning for $84 apiece.

City Atty. John Sherman reported that Miller & Petersen had bid $57,257, while the CHP had bid $56,784, a savings of $1254. Mrs. Brockway added that rebidding would cause a 45-day delay, and three police cars already are laid up.

The council voted 4-1 to buy the state cars with only Lumley voting no. In other action, the council:

• Adopted a resolution asking the state to pay all costs incurred by local agencies for the 911 (universal emergency phone number) implementation. Although Pacifica already has paid $4,200 to become the sole city in the county to have the 911 system, the entire county faces costs of $7.5 to $14.3 million for the first five years of the program.

• Appropriate $350 to renovate Sharp Park Library Community room.

• Authorized the city manager to acquire a city Master Charge credit card with a $500 line of credit. It is needed for conducting city business in restaurants, it was explained.

• Authorized a $800 survey to resolve title mixup on San Pedro Beach, involving lands and rights of way of the Linda Mar Sewage Lift Station, the state-owned beach land, and the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Joe (Supervisor Jean) Fassler.

• Authorized payment of up to $4,000 for survey work by Piombo Paving Co. on its search for proper street right of way in paving a number of Sharp Park streets. Accepted project which cost $241,827.

• Authorized spending $400 to ascertain the results of the recent Peninsula Humane Society survey. This sum is needed to run the computer printout cards through a sorting machine.

• Authorized agreement hiring Consoe, Townsend and Associates as engineers for the $6 million secondary sewer treatment plant, recently approved by the state. Construction is due to begin May 1, 1976.

Congregation B'nai Israel, Daly City, will honor Julius J. Michaelis, one of its most active and dedicated members, with a testimonial dinner-dance to be held Saturday at B'nai Israel Synagogue, 1575 Annie St., Daly City, beginning with no-host cocktails at 7 p.m. followed by dinner at 8 p.m., and dancing to the Orchestra of Bud Segheiri.

Local dignitaries, officers and members of the Congregation, relatives and friends will pay tribute to Michaelis on the occasion of his retirement from the business world and will express their appreciation for his many years of service in synagogue activities and to the community at large.

He also served on the Daly City Department of Parks and Recreation Sub-committee which, among other things, was instrumental in building the Westmoor High School swimming pool.

Samuel Chandler

The Ecology Crisis

The year is 1990. "A commercial airliner takes off from Dulles International Airport and climbs swiftly Although it is still daylight, the sky is eerie dark. Little can be seen of the ground below, the capitol dome, or the Potomac River a few miles away. Smoke, heavy and black from the coal-fired power plants, and heavy auto emissions have combined to cast a pall over the capital city. It covers most of the megalopolis that stretches down the Atlantic seaboard."

So warns Washington correspondent Gil Bailey in an article in "Cry California." He is fearful that America's concern with conservation and ecology will be overshadowed by her desire to achieve "national energy self-sufficiency." If it happens the results will "affect everyone from every walk of life and will hit with more impact than the energy crisis of 1973-74."

Bailey sees in President Ford's "Project Independence" the seeds of an impending food crisis over the face of America to say nothing of the rest of the world. He writes that loss of concern for the preservation of natural resources will bring "shortages of land, water, fertilizer and energy." America will change from a country living on imported coffee, tin, rubber and alike to a nation fighting over its own products.

The value of water for energy development may be so high that farmers cannot bid for it for agricultural uses. Whole rivers, such as the Columbia and the Colorado may be diverted to feed hungry plants, the plains of North Dakota and the canyons of Wyoming and Utah may have to be torn apart because they possess oil shale. Yosemite, Grand Canyon and the Missouri River Basin may have to be closed to the public while bulldozers move in to mine for energy producing minerals.

Bailey charges that already the signs of the destruction of nature are evident in the once lush Imperial, San Joaquin and Sacramento Valleys of California. He says that desperate attempts to build Los Angeles by conversion of agricultural and mountain lands to city streets has sharply reduced the available food in that area.

Says he "California markets, once filled with fresh produce, are nearly empty because of the curtailment of agriculture brought on by the need for energy, etc."

HE FURTHER WARNS that while American land goes out of production, "several hungry but nuclear-equiped nations back demand for American produce with clear threat of holocaust."

Yet when conservation minded people ask the "energy czar" in Washington where would the nation find the water necessary to extract the oil and coal that is found in the Colorado River Basin, he passed it off it takes three barrels of water to produce one barrel of oil it takes three barrels of water to produce on barrel of oil from oil shale in that already water-short area.

With his dire predictions in mind, Bailey urges the Congress and the American people to give a great amount of consideration to such balanced programs of conservation and development as the measures sponsored by Senators Cranston, Jackson and Representative Udall.

Bailey notes that a Ford Foundation report warns that energy consumption must be reduced and writes that it can be done by adopting certain measures. Among them are these:

"—Adopt minimum fuel-economy performance standards for new cars, to achieve an average of at least 20 miles per gallon by 1985.

—Encourage more efficient space heating and cooling. This includes making credit easily available for energy-saving investments in existing buildings, setting higher Federal Housing Administration standards for insulation and heating and cooling systems; upgrading building codes and providing technical assistance to builders.

—Design government programs to encourage technological innovation for saving energy. This includes shifting federal research-and-development funding toward energy conservation technology.

—Set prices to reflect the full costs of producing energy — this is especially important for the promotion of energy-saving in industry. This means eliminating energy industry subsidies; abolishing promotional discounts for big electricity users; levying pollution taxes to supplement pollution-control regulation; and building oil stockpiles financed by tariffs on imported oil.

—Even at 2 per cent annual growth rate, energy supplies will need to be 28 per cent larger in 1985 than in 1973. Yet the slowdown from present growth rates would mean that from now until 1985, the nation could meet demand without resorting to developments that risk grave environmental damage or serious foreign-policy confrontations.

—Until 1985, new supplies could come from discoverings of oil and gas onshore, plus offshore production in the Gulf of Mexico; secondary and tertiary recovery from existing oil and gas wells; coal from deep mines and surface mines where the land can be reclaimed; and electric power plants already in some stage of construction. For this period, at least, it would not be necessary to embark on large-scale development of Western coal and shale where reclamation is chancy or impossible.

Junior Grand National Dates at 'Palace' Told

The nation's only totally youth oriented livestock exposition, horse show and rodeo will be held at San Francisco's Cow Palace March 21-April 2.

Dates for the 29th annual Grand National Junior Show were announced this week. The new Cow Palace president, Jack Cooke, said, "We offer the boys and girls of California the full range of livestock-horse events. This is totally their show."

Cooke said the Cow Palace provides young participants with facilities, production, supervisory, and judging personnel equal to that of its famous Grand National, held each fall.

"Denver, Fort Worth and many of the other major livestock expositions include classes for juniors in their show, and there are many junior horse shows and high school rodeos, but at no other location are all these elements combined," Cooke added.

The Cow Palace staff expects more than 2,500 California youngsters, aged 5 to 19, from all over the state to participate, Cooke said.

The livestock exposition last year drew 2,951 entries in beef cattle, dairy, sheep and swine classes, shown by 1,871 young members of the Future Farmers of America and 4-H Club. They represented 101 schools from 39 California counties.

A highlight of the livestock show is the market animal auction, which last year rewarded the young people who had raised superior animals with a total of $194,828.

The high school rodeo to be held March 22-23, features student teams from each of the state's seven high school rodeo districts. They will compete for the state district team championship in a full scale of rodeo contests for both young cowboys and cowgirls. To be eligible, contestants must earn the right in district eliminations.

Junior horse show riders take over on March 27. With horse enthusiasm still on the increase, the Cow Palace expects more than 745 entries from 665 exhibitors who competed at the 1974 event.

'I Have a Dream'

A tradition was observed at George Washington School in Daly City Tuesday, Jan. 14. — the celebration of Martin Luther King Jr. Day.

Over 750 students from Washington, Crocker and General Pershing Schools join in the festivities, which were highlighted by the appearance of the San Francisco Youth Inspirational Gospel Choir.

Washington School student body officers also spoke of the life of Dr. King and how his preachings relate to the environment at Washington. The Jefferson Elementary District (4th through 6th grade) school, has a large minority enrollment.

NELL NORTON

Good morning, good cooks.

Two weeks ago the column was headed by a recipe for Taco Salad, which I indicated was a gem. It was a gem, but it got me in a jam because I left off the last of the instructions for making it. The method of mixing ended with the cooking of the meat sauce. Good cooks called the paper to ask, "What happens after the meat sauce simmers for five minutes"?

A good question and fortunately I have a good answer for it. I'll repeat the whole recipe here, complete with full directions for mixing and fixing.

TACO SALAD

- 1½ pounds ground beef
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- French Dressing
- ¼ teaspoon each salt and pepper
- 3 cups shredded lettuce
- 2 tomatoes, diced
- ¼ cup radish slices
- ¼ cup green onion slices
- 1 6-oz. package tortilla or corn chips
- 1 avocado, peeled and cubed
- 1 cup (4-oz.) shredded sharp natural cheddar cheese
- ½ cup pitted ripe olive slices
- ½ cup dairy sour cream

Brown the one and one-half pounds beef with the fourth cup onion; drain. Add one-fourth cup French Dressing and one-fourth teaspoon each salt and pepper; simmer five minutse.

Combine the three cups lettuce, two diced tomatoes and fourth cup each radish and green onion slices; add enough French Dressing to moisten; toss lightly.

Place the tortilla chips, diced avocado, one-cup shredded cheese, half cup ripe olive slices and half cup sour cream in individual serving bowls.

For each salad, serve meat mixture over tortilla chips, top with lettuce mixture and avocado, cheese, olives and sour cream as desired. Four to six servings.

Here's a cake that is so easy to make, you can turn the recipe over to the youngest cook in the family and have a delicious dessert in a jiffy.

FRUIT COCKTAIL CAKE

- 2 cups flour
- 2 teaspoons baking soda
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1½ cups sugar
- 1 17-oz. can fruit cocktail, undrained
- one egg

In large mixing bowl sift the two cups flour, two teaspoons soda, one-half teaspoon salt and one and one-half cups sugar. Combine the 17-ounces fruit cocktail, undrained, with the egg and stir into the dry ingredients. Blend well and turn into a greased 9x13-inch baking pan and bake for 30 minutes ni a 350-degree oven.

25th Annual Event
March of Dimes Drive Begins

The 25th annual March of Dimes Mother's March is underway after a kick-off luncheon Wednesday at the Fork 'n' Cork Restaurant in San Mateo for the county volunteer leaders.

San Mateo County Chairman Mrs. Sam Birnbaum appealed at the luncheon for volunteers to lead and conduct the annual march which will raise funds for the National Foundation's battle against birth defects and to enrich the quality of life.

"Become a member of this team," Mrs. Birnbaum urged mothers of the county. "Surely, as mothers, each of us can give time on one day in the year to ring doorbells in our own neighborhoods for this great cause."

Chairman of the March is Mrs. Dianne Siegrist of San Mateo. She is hopeful that more than 1,000 mothers will march this year. The March will be conducted until Jan. 31 but is expected to peak the last Tuesday of the month.

At the session, Dr. Bryan Hall, director of Pediatrics and assistant director of the Birth Defects Center at the University of California Medical Center, San Francisco, showed graphic slides of deformed babies, and told of gains made since the National Foundation, which conquered poliomyelitis, took on this problem.

Dr. Hall, who said that a foundation fellowship has assisted his own education, declared that in the past five years, knowledge gained in studies of the fluid surrounding the fetus has enabled doctors to diagnose 600 different disorders before a baby is born.

Five years ago this was not attainable at all, he said.

"People now have the option of knowing a baby will be normal," Dr. Hall said. He said that the case load is so heavy now that he doesn't recommend visiting a foundation clinic unless there is some cause for concern.

But any mother can telephone the area clinic, he said, and exchange information which would ascertain whether a problem might exist.

The clinics have found the patient load increasing in two and a half years from 350 families to 900 families seeking genetic counsel and analysis, he said.

"Mothers can tell if their baby will have all its body parts, is missing an arm or head," he said. "Mongolism, congenital defects, heart defects and chromosome deficiency can be detected."

Knowledge already gained by the foundation has not merely saved the lives of babies after birth but has in some case been the difference between death or mental retardation and a normal life, he said.

In one case, that of babies whose facial nerve is weak causing a failure to show facial expression, many who really are normal have wound up in mental institutions. "We go to one after another to find those who really are normal mentally," he said.

Dr. Hall said that the original prototype of the more than 100 foundation clinics now existing in a majority of the states was founded in Marin County in 1968, and that this and the U.C. clinic now have 12 satellite clinics in northern and central California.

The 12 clinics average from 25 to 40 patients; there were 260 last year, he said.

Volunteers who wish to join the drive may contact the National Foundation office at 205 E. 3rd Ave., San Mateo or Margaret G. Whetsel, its executive director.

Repetto, Pagano Recite Promises

Honeymooning in Los Angeles before establishing a residence in San Bruno are Robert Albert Pagano and his bride, the former Anne Marie Repetto.

The couple was married Saturday at 2 p.m. at St. Veronica Church. A reception followed at the Millbrae Recreation Center.

The Rev. Paul Coleman officiated at the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Natale Repetto and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Pagano. Both families live in South San Francisco.

For her wedding, the bride wore a French satin gown and carried a bouquet of minuet roses and stephanotis. A burgundy velvet dress was chosen by her honor attendants, and emerald green velvet dresses were worn by the other members of the bridal party.

Julia Repetto of South San Francisco was the maid of honor for her sister. Two other sisters, Karen and JoAnne Repetto, shared bridesmaid duties with Lori Morelli, the bridegroom's cousin.

Best man for his brother was Anthony Pagano. Ushers included the bridegroom's other brothers, Frank and Richard Kastel, and Robert Falsarella.

A student at San Francisco State, the bride is an alumnus of Mercy High School and Skyline College. Her husband was graduated from El Camino High School and Skyline College and also is continuing his education at San Francisco State. He has also studied at the College of San Mateo.

State Energy Consumption Decreases

People don't have to be "conservation nuts" to save energy.

A review of PG&E electricity use statistics for Northern California shows that while the number of PG&E customers increased by 3 per cent in 1974, actual kilowatt hour consumption was down by 2 per cent over the 1973 year.

Dennis Pooler, PG&E spokesman, explained there was less use in Southern California because Los Angeles applied strict mandatory conservation measures that set a pattern for all of the south state.

"There's no question but what people took to heart and applied to their homes and businesses statewide the vast amount of publicity on the energy crisis," said Pooler.

He said contacts were made by utilities with individual large industries, actually going into plants and doing power surveys, and offering tips on how to conserve energy.

Despite the reduction in over-all use, peak demand is up 7 per cent, said Pooler, defining this as "all generators running at once."

PG&E also has prepared a pamphlet to encourage the efficient use of energy in new residential construction." It covers everything from weatherstripping exterior doors to putting tight fitting dampers on fireplaces.

Pooler said PG&E's advertisements now have two primary thrusts; to promote conservation and to explain why rates are skyrocketing.

One reason for the latter, said Pooler, is because of the increasing necessity to rely on the use of fuel oil instead of natural gas to generate energy.

It has been pointed out many times by assorted experts that natural gas has been over-used to the point where reserves have dwindled.

As a result, unless new energy sources can be found, the era of cheap energy appears to be fast fading. PG&E thinks nuclear energy may be the answer.

The utility has one plant in the Eureka area and is building two others near San Luis Obispo, one of which is scheduled to be operational by May of 1976 and the other a year later.

"One of those units will generate the equivalent of 10 million barrels of oil a vear," said Pooler, acknowledging the nation-wide controversy questioning the safety of nuclear plants.

Another viewpoint on the conservation of electricity and nuclear plant has been offered in a recent report edited by Lloyd Warble and Charles Meyers of the Stanford Law School. It is titled "Electricity Policy Choices: A California Case Study."

The report was part of class work of 21 students in law, economics, engineering, biology and communications. It was partially supported by the University Progress Fund.

In underlining the potential hazards of extensive nuclear energy development, the report states that "there is practically no way to avoid environmental degradation except by reducing total electrical consumption."

According to the report, electricity prices, like phone rates, should vary during the day to discourage use during peak periods.

The so-called "peak load pricing," according to the report, has been used successfully in France for 17 years and if implemented here would help save fuel, reduce capital needs and possibly permit rate reductions of as much as 50 per cent in some instances, PG&E officials believe.

"There would be a dual pricing structure," said Pooler. "It involves some rather serious ramifications if done on a system-wide basis. PG&E has almost three million customers. You can imagine the expense, just in the cost of the meter."

According to Pooler, the meters would cost between $80 and $100. Then there would be the cost of installation and expenses related to the time of reading the meter and separate accounting.

Meanwhile the consumer must continue to use common sense approaches, such as turning off unneeded lights and turning down thermostats, to conserve energy, realize savings and yet maintain comfort.

LAW DEGREE

Daly City police officer Dennis Sheehy has passed the State of California Bar Examination and was admitted to the Bar Dec. 1. Sheehy joined the Daly City department in 1960 and was promoted to sergeant in 1967. He continued his education in law and, in 1970, obtained his B.A. from San Francisco State. Sheehy entered the San Francisco Law School where he received his Jurist Doctorate. The officer is married and has three children.

OLPH Plans A Jubilee Celebration

Rev. John Mullen, Pastor, Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church, 60 Wellington Ave., Daly City, will head a concelebrated Mass at 4 p.m. Saturday, to mark the start of Our Lady of Perpetual Helps parish jubilee celebrations.

Among the priests concelebrants will be Rev. Matthew Sullivan, Robert Johnson and Tom McElligott.

The cornerstone for the original church, St. Maximus, was laid April 25, 1925, by Msgr. Joseph Gleeson. The first mass said in the church was Oct. 11, 1925, by Rev. Frs. Bedford and John Cullen. The church was completed and formally dedicated and blessed in 1926. The change of name from St. Maximus to Our Lady of Perpetual Help was made on Dec. 8, 1929, due to a large part on the big following on devotions to Our Lady of Perpetual Help.

The mass on Jan. 25, followed by a reception, is in honor of the priests who have served the parish since the church's inception in the area as well as a reunion of all persons baptized and married in the church during the years 1925-1930.

Chairpersons of the jubilee celebrations are Robert Gross and Mrs. Alfonso Morales.

Court St. Mary No. 1155, Catholic Daughters of America, will host the Reception following the mass. Court St. Mary No. 1155 was instituted in 1930 in Daly City and its members through the years have been very active in parish and school activities. Regent, Mrs. William Cuevas, requests all members to attend the reception planned.

All parishioners and friends are welcome.

Barney's Preems New Look and Coffee Shop

Congratulations are in order for Betty Chartrand (wife of the late Lou Chartrand) and Robert Berry for the splendid new-look at Barney's Casino, South Lake Tahoe. A $300,000 renovation, which includes added space for gaming, is now completed. Plans are also on the agenda to add a Baccarat table to the club's many activities. Extra special news is the new coffee shop, which rates with the best in the area, and features a new menu spotlighting steaks, seafoods, sandwiches (25 varieties), a pastry bar, and breakfast 24 hours a day. Your favorite cocktails served at the bar or table. Already a favorite stop for countless South Shore visitors, the club's many improvements will undoubtedly attract thousands more. Harry Bay is the general manager, with years of successful casino business experience. Drop in Barney's, "make your points," and say hello to Harry . . . The new Bayhill Shopping Center is where you'll find Hot Diggity, a gourmet soup pantry destined for great success. 20 different kinds of soup and a wide selection of sandwiches and salads are menu features of this new San Bruno restaurant owned by Bob Banks . . . Inflation is definitely not running rampant at Tanforan Park's Garden Restaurants. Instead, Jack Kuks, general manager of the San Bruno restaurant complex, is offering a 50 cent savings in the form of a coupon, which is to be found in today's Bright Lights. Valid through February 22 and good for 50 cents off on any purchase of one dollar, or more, at any of the nine Garden Restaurants, the coupon must be redeemed after 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

SWINGING BEAT

The Kurt Alan Trio swings out the songs of today for dancing and listening, Thursday through Saturday, in San Bruno's new Bayhill Lounge, where quadraphonic sound is a first on the Peninsula. There's live music for dancing nightly, with Ron Scott entertaining on Wednesdays and Sundays. You'll find this cluby spot, located in the Bayhill Shopping Center, well worth a night on the town. Never a cover charge.

Enrico Romano's for Pizza and Italian Food

"Serving superior pizza" is the reputation established by Enrico Romano at his Romano's Italian restaurant in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica. This cozy restaurant holds much appeal for one and all. A dinner suggestion is Scaloppine a la Enrico, served with soup, salad, antipasto, paste, vegetable and beverage. You'll also find choice table wines to enhance any meal . . . Murray Lehr is back at the helm of his Lehr's Greenhouse garden restaurant in San Francisco after a fabulous two-week fishing trip to the Caribbean with his three sons, Dean, John and Randy. Their most exciting catch was a four-foot hammerhead shark reeled in by 14-year-old Randy. Murray plans to have it mounted as a memento of the trip . . . Adrian Stickney's Shirt Tail restaurant is an elegant dinner house with a very handsome interior. Beamed ceilings, rock walls and plush carpeting all add to the relaxing and intimate atmosphere which prevails here. There's a wide choice of menu selections, from Medallions of Filet Mignon to Australian Lobster Tails to Italian dishes, plus steaks and prime rib.

Dinner at Scotty Campbell's is an unforgettable experience. This distinctive Redwood City restaurant is in the run for top honors in the prime rib field. Portions cater to gusty appetites. All entrees are accompanied by a huge baked potato and plenty of fresh butter, or sour cream if preferred. A tossed salad topped with your choice of dressing plus a basket of warm, garlic French bread gets the meal off to a savory start. A much chosen restaurant by those in the theatrical world. Most any evening sees a headliner appearing at Circle Star Theater dining here . . . Although Vince's restaurant specializes in seafood and Italian dishes, you'll find such favorites as Corned Beef and Cabbage (the Thursday Luncheon Special) and Pot Roast of Beef to be among the extensive list of entrees. If you're hungry for a New York steak, it's seasoned and broiled to your liking. Tony and Louis Licata combine their restaurant know-how to form a great business team . . . That huge, exquisite copy of Fragonard's "Young Lovers" that hangs in the Wellington Room of Phil Lehr's Steakery in downtown San Francisco was painted by Phil's beautiful and talented wife, Ronnie. Phil has a flock of big offers for the canvas, but won't part with it — for any price.

Russell Reed, who tips the Toledos at about 395 pounds, is one of the stars in the lavish "Spotlight on Show. Business" revue currently presented four times nightly Wednesday through Sunday, at Finocchio's in San Francisco. Billed as the "Biggest act in show business," Russell brings down the house with his strip tease version of "Sweet Gypsy Rose." . . . Although the Holiday season is last year's news, the banquet room at Nick's restaurant in Rockaway Beach is still much in demand. The party facility is in use almost every evening for intimate functions. Located just next door, and also overlooking the Pacific Ocean, is The Moonraker, a restaurant that has been carefully designed with the gourmet diner in mind. The theme is nautical, the food is continental. Downstairs in the same building is Captain Charles Restaurant, which serves 90 per cent seafood specialities. Business at all three restaurants remains brisk . . . If you're headed toward Lake Tahoe or Reno, be certain to check out Nevada Tours' many Drive-Up Packages with their super bonus values. A Drive-Up to South Lake Tahoe, which is available seven days a week, offers a total bonus value of $10 per person. Call Kay (345-0488), she'll tell you all about it.

County Welfare Fraud Probes Top in State

Based on population, San Mateo County led the state in welfare fraud investigations and prosecutions during 1974, District Atty. Keith C. Sorenson reported.

Only San Diego and Orange Counties — both with much larger populations cases had more convictions in aid to dependent children cases; in the state during the first 11 months of the year, according to a year-end report issued today by Sorenson.

San Diego had 175 convictions during the year and Orange County had 208, compared to San Mateo 172.

The district attorney's welfare fraud investigation team, headed by Lt. Robert A. Menicutch, opened 1974 with 408 cases still under investigation from the previous year. During the year an additional 625 cases were investigated, resulting in a total of 1,033 cases investigated by the three-man team. Of these, 624 were closed leaving 409 cases still open as 1974 closed.

Out of the cases opened, 297 complaints were actually filed, Sorenson said, compared to 266 in 1973 and 111 in 1972.

During the entire 12 months of 1974, Menicutch reported, of all types of cases filed, including those in the general assistance category, 210 convictions were obtained, compared to 130 in 1973 and only 61 in 1972.

Sorenson predicted with the current economic recession and increasing employment, the number of cases handled during 1975 will be much greater.

As a result of the convictions, according to the report, $318,914 in restitutions were ordered, and $4,440 in fines were levied.

According to the report, 183 persons entered guilty pleas, compared to 119 during the previous year and 57 in 1972.

Judges levied numerous types of penalties, including combinations of jail terms and formal probation and summary probation and a certain number of hours of public service work.

"Through vigorous pursuit, we were top in the state in prosecutions per capita," Sorenson said, praising Gov. Reagan for his crackdown on welfare fraud cases. He said that his investigators were able to use the state's "Earnings Clearance Center," which contains social security figures in its computers.

Judges, however, are in quandry, Sorenson said, because they often do not know what to do with a woman who must support her children, and yet has no husband.

"But something must be done to halt the rise of these cases," Sorenson said.

He said he will have a few recommendations for the Board of Supervisors to improve the county's present crackdown, although, "they will be very few because this county is already doing what most people recommend be done. There is not much else we can do."

Community Workers Council Plans Workshop in Daly City

The Community Workers Coordinating Council has announced a Community Workshop for Jan. 25, from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 45 Southgate Ave., Daly City.

Principal speakers will be Dr. Floyd Wiley, director, North County Mental Health Center; the Rev. Cecil Williams, Glide Memorial Church, San Francisco; Mrs. Alice Kessler, director of the Daly City Community Service Center; Chief of Police David Hansen, Daly City Police Department; Julius Castellan, representing Daly City Senior Citizens, and Dr. jrudy Tretten, a consultant in education programs.

Group workshops will explore six basic areas: Inter-agency communication; community service needs and overlapping services; evaluation of availability of services; evaluation of police community relations, and needs of senior citizens.

There will be participation by representatives of all community oriented agencies in the Daly City area, and members of the public. Interested persons may obtain more informatvn by calling the Daly City Community Services Center, 992-4500, extension 210.

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. and the program will open at 10 a.m. Participants must provide their own lunches. Coffee and soft drinks will be provided.

This program was born in the Community Workers Coordinating Council, an organization of street-level workers that came into being in November, 1974. Purpose of the organization was to provide a means of communication between agencies at the lower levels, and to make workers more aware of community resources.

It is the hope that this workshop will provide an opportunity for public enlightenment and participation.

$10,500 Fire in Pacifica

Fire in a huge apartment complex in north Pacifica caused an estimated $10,500 damage Thursday.

According to firemen, Barbara Maggi, 465 Esplanade, Apt. 8, was awakened just before 6 a.m. by the cries of her two children, Gina, 4, and Marcus, 2. She found smoke filling her apartment. She led her children outside before calling firemen.

Firemen estimate $7,500 damage to the building and $3000 contents, including clothing and furniture.

Firemen said smoking in bed might have caused the blaze.

Another occupant of the apartment, Mrs. Maggi's sister, Becky Nunes, had left earlier for work, firemen said.

Rabies Clinic Will Be Held In Daly City

A local need expressed by Councilman Anthony Giammona and endorsed by the Daly City Council will become a reality for Daly City Feb. 2.

The first Rabies Clinic to be held in many years will be available to local residents. In cooperation with the County of San Mateo, the City of Daly City will co-sponsor the clinic between 1-3 p.m. at the building on Reservoir 5B. The parking lot for Reservoir 5B is located at 75 Margate St. in the Serramonte area of Daly City.

Rabies shots will cost $3 per animal for both dogs and cats. Animals must be over four months of age. The vaccine is good for a period of two years. All animals must be on a leash, and small children should not be sent with large dogs. All animals that receive the vaccine will receive a certificate.

No Cancer Fraud in SM County

By DUANE SANDUL

Cancer quackery is a $200 million business in California.

But as far as is known, its a zero dollar business in San Mateo County.

The first figure comes from Assemblyman Robert Cline, R-Woodland Hills. The second total comes from Margaret Kemp, chief of the consumer fraud division of the County's District Attorney's Office.

Cline, in a Capitol News Service release, is urging district attorneys throughout the state to crack down on the racket, and take advantage of a new law making cancer quackery a felony, punishable by fines of $10,000 or prison terms of one to five years.

But according to Miss Kemp, there's nothing to crack down upon in San Mateo County. There has never been a complaint of cancer quackery.

She points out, though, that cases could go unreported.

Cancer quackery is the name applied to hoodlums who prey upon persons inicted with the deadly disease, trying to sell patients some "cure," whether it be an illegal drug or a homemade remedy.

Prior to Jan. 1, the crime was a misdemeanor. "The new law provides district attorneys the incentive to prosecute quacks who prey so mercilessly on innocent cancer victims who are at one of the most vulnerable periods of their lives," Cline said.

Miss Kemp explained that most schemes are developed through faith healer-patient relationships, or dishonest hospital employes who provide someone a list of recent cancer patients.

She said none of these relationships have ever surfaced in San Mateo County.

Cancer is among 37 diseases which state law prohibits advertising drugs or cures.

Jeff Dist. Gets Mental Health Aides

Hiring of a 15-member staff to begin the county's new preventive mental health service for youngsters in three San Mateo County school districts was authorized by a 4 to 1 vote of the Board of Supervisors Jan. 14.

The board approved the new eight-year program last October, with the $264,309 for staff funding to come from the federal government. The program initially is beginning in the Ravenswood, San Mateo City and Jefferson elementary school districts. It will be expanded to other districts as teachers and parents learn to detect and counsel children who are or may become "a risk" of developing emotional or behavioral problems.

Supervisor Edward J. Bacciocco Jr., who voted against the staff proposal, expressed concern that the county and schools might be "going into an area better left to ministers and mothers."

Pickett said there will be no medical personnel involved, but rather counselors who can train teachers and parents to detect the signs of stress.

He admitted that there are concerns of "professional meddling in family affairs."

"We want to be super cautious," Pickett stated

Bacciocco said he believed he had an "honest difference of opinion" concerning the program. Referring to the books by Dr. Benjamin Spock, he stated that he is opposed to "someone else's mind determining how to raise children."

Board Chairman James V. Fitzgerald said that Bacciocco raised "some good points."

He expressed the opinion that there is "not enough emphasis on what the problems are and what you are going to do about them."

Pickett promised a report on the program, including participation by teachers, before the board by late this coming spring.

Ryan Headed Bid To Oust Leaders

Congressman Leo J. Ryan of San Mateo was one of a handful of younger members of the House of Representatives who Thursday proved they have enough power to oust those former most powerful leaders of Congress, the senior chairmen of key committees.

Ryan said Friday that he and Congressman Les Aspin of Wisconsin, "and some others," had prepared for the caucus Thursday which ousted Chairman F. Edward Hebert of the Armed Services Committee and W. R. Poage of the Agriculture Committee.

He said the changes indicate more than merely a question of who sits on which committees, and who has a title.

"This is a part of something that has been building for years.

"For the first time in over 40 years we have a truly Democratic majority in the House and we have a House that is impatient with the blockage of policies that have gone on in these key committees over the years."

Policies will change as a result, Ryan said, one of the major shifts being in defense spending.

"This is a direct notice to the Pentagon that they will no longer have an automatic approval in the House Armed Services Committee.

"The B-1 bomber, which has been funded at great expense for several years will probably not be funded any further.

"The expenditure of billions for particular defense systems that may or may not be needed," said Ryan, may also be ended.

"We already have several layers or ranks of defense systems, radar, missiles, the Navy, the Air Force, and so on."

Congressman Ryan said the caucus revolution that came Thursday, "would have come anyway," even if Congressman Wilbur Mills of Arkansas had not brought his career to a politically disastrous end.

"Mills would have faced this, too," said Ryan.

The former South San Francisco Council member and Capuchino High School teacher explained that the majority party caucus can "decide what seniority is."

Two years ago, he said, he and other young members of Congress squeezed through some rule changes that allow the caucus to consider other qualifications for chairmanship, beyond seniority.

Ryan said he and the other leaders of change had been prepared for a battle on the floor of the House of Congress, "but it didn't come."

SLIDE SHOW

F. Lincoln Walter, insurance executive and active member of The Friends of the Daly City Library, will conduct through the use of slides a pictorial trip through Tahiti, New Zealand, Australia and Fiji, for The Friends and their guests in the Coral Room of the Westlake Branch Library, 275 Southgate Ave., tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend. Discussing the program are Mrs. Michael Daw

Workers' Negotiation Deadline

A spokesman for a new union which represents 600 of the 1,000 clerical employes of San Mateo County government, said today that negotiations "are getting a little friendlier" and that potential for a strike "is something we don't say out loud."

A target date of Feb. 1 has been set for a day of decision by members of the Clerical Workers Alliance.

A fourth negotiating session is scheduled for Wednesday.

The Alliance, an offspring of a feud over representation by two unions, opened negotiations with a demand of across-the-board $300-per-month pay raises.

It also is seeking improvements in fringe benefits.

In a press release, the Alliance charged that because most of the clerical positions are filled by women, the salaries are "set below those of jobs requiring similar education and experience filled by males."

The release also stated that many of the clerks are single and cannot afford to live on their present salaries.

"Economic pressure as well as increased consciousness about women's rights has dramatically changed government clerical employes' attitudes," the release said.

Karate Show To Highlight Girls' Dinner

A karate demonstration by a father and daughter, who both hold black belts, will be the highlight of the Daly City Camp Fire Girls' father-daughter dinner to be held Jan. 24.

Debbie Barro and her father Tom, who operates a karate school in Daly City, will demonstrate various techniques involved in karate. Among other things, they will show how a smaller person can throw a heavier person.

All Daly City Blue Birds, Adventurers and Discovery Club members and their fathers have been invited to the dinner at 6:30 p.m. at the FDR multi-use room. The school is located at 1200 Skyline Drive.

The Ko Ki Ta Wan Ka Horizon Club is planning and serving the dinner as part of earning their torch bearer rank in cooking.

Papan Makes Appointments

Assemblyman Louis J. Papan has announced his appointments to the Democratic State Central Committee.

Included in the group are Mrs. Norma Corey, who was campaign coordinator for Congressman Leo J. Ryan's recent re-election; Mrs. Barbara Simon, co-chairperson of the San Mateo County Women's Division of the Democratic Party; San Mateo Attorney Joseph Cotchett; Albert Polonsky, Daly City city attorney; Robert Batinovich of Hillsborough; Tom Taylor, an assistant state labor commissioner; and Mrs. May Gee of Pacifica.

The committee members will attend the semi-annual State Democratic Convention in Sacramento Jan. 26 and 27.

'Won in the Trenches'

What can one say about the Super Bowl that hasn't already been said? We suppose that "It was won in the trenches" will become the standard catch phrase for it, so we won't say it, even though it's true.

One interesting highly publicized aspect of the pregame ballyhoo was Fran Tarkenton's sore arm, and Bud Grant's seeming coolness in the face of such potential disaster. Grant even went so far as to predict that the sore arm might be a good omen, because Takenton — along with many other professional football players — seems to play better with such nagging injuries. They seem to make him concentrate harder and over-compensate.

"Whenever he's had a sore arm in the past," said Grant, "he's played at his best," or words to that effect.

Actually, Grant wasn't as brace as he sounded. Had Chuck Foreman or Carl Eller or Alan Page, for examples, had sprained ankles, or if Tarkenton had a bad ankle, we feel that Grant would have displayed much more concern. Quarterbacks can get by much easier with a sore arm than a leg injury, unless the arm is almost totally paralyzed; in fact, that is probably one of the least critical injuries a player can have, even if he's a quarterback.

Some might scoff at that notion, and ask how effective the A's would have been had Catfish Hunter had a sore arm. But there is no basis for comparison in this case, because for one, a quarterback does more with the rest of his body — discounting the arm — than a pitcher does and because, more importantly, even a good control pitcher in baseball must figure on throwing that small pellet at least 100 times during a game, probably half of the time putting extra strain on the elbow by twisting it in different directions to throw breaking pitches. A quarterback should only have to throw 20 times a game, and everything he throws is straight. It also requires more strain on the arm to throw lighter objects, and a baseball of course is much lighter than a football.

IF YOU CAN STAND a little more pro football, it might be a good time for our annual 49er quiz. This one is short, but it's tough. If you get more than one right, you're an expert:

1. Name the 49ers in the pro football Hall of Fame.
2. Name the 49ers who threw the most TD passes in a season, and how many.
3. Name the 49ers who threw the most TD passes in a game, and how many.
4. Name the 49er who has kicked the longest punt, and how long was it.
5. Name the runner who holds the 49er record for most carries in a game, and how many.
6. Name the runner who holds the 49er record for most carries in a season, and how many.

ANSWERS:

1. Hugh McElhenny, Leon Nomellini, Joe Perry, Y. A. Tittle.

2. Frankie Albert, in 1948, John Brodie, 30 in 1965.

3. Frankie Albert (Cleveland, Oct. 9, 1949, All America Conference); John Brodie (Minnesota, Nov. 23, 1965) and Steve Spurrier (Chicago, Nov. 19, 1972), all with five.

4. Larry Barnes (Chicago Cardinals, Sept. 26, 1957), 86 yards.

5. J. D. Smith, who equalled his own record on consecutive Sundays at 31 (Baltimore, Oct. 7, 1962; Chicago, Oct. 14, 1962.

6. J. D. Smith, 258, 1962.

While we're still on the 49ers, and reminded of McElhenny, it should be remembered that he wasn't JUST the most exciting runner of his era, but that he was historically important in that he, more than any other player, was responsible for one of pro football's most important rules changes; one that possibly helped prolong the careers of future Hall of Fame runners.

At his peak, McElhenny was almost impossible to keep down. Somebody would knock him on his rear, and he'd instantly be up, reversing his field and circling the entire defense. In those days, remember, a runner could get up after he hit the turf, no matter how many players hit him. The whistle wasn't blown until he was all but hog-tied. One can imagine the piling on that occurred, and the cheap shots that McElhenny, especially, too.

The fates finally overtook McElhenny — and the rule — during the 1954 season. The 49ers were off to one of their patented great starts, leading the league with a four win, one tie record, with McElhenny averaging eight yards a carry, and they were playing The Monsters of the Midway (and they really were), the Chicago Bears, at Kezar. They had beaten the Bears in Chicago just two weeks before, 31-24, due to another great performance by McElhenny, who in those days used to eat the Bears up. Papa Halas' boys were scratching the ground and snorting in anticipation of nailing Mac. And they did. He was tripped up on a wide sweep early in the game, and even though obviously down in the clutches of two or three Bears, another half dozen pounded in on him long after a whistle would have been blown under current rules. Hugh got a cracked collar bone, the Bears won, 31-27, McElhenny was out for the rest of the year, and the 49ers finished 7-4-1.

It had been such a blatant hunt for McElhenny that the rule was reviewed, and eventually changed.

NO, TO ANSWER your questions in print, the Ali-Foreman fight was not a fix. Fixes always look better than that. It was too obviously a bad fight to be a fix.

It was, in fact, a disgraceful exhibition, a rip-off on the paying public, a disillusioning event for true fight fans.

That a heavyweight champion could have been so out of condition as Foreman (his flat belly was on the result of crash conditioning a few days before the fight, which weakened him) is still inconceivable to us. As for Ali, press reports had led us to believe that he had come back. He hasn't. All that he has left are his wits, and that's all it took to beat Foreman.

ON TO BASKETBALL, And we must say that the Warriors continue to surprise us. One thing, aside from talent and, apparently, coaching, which has kept them up there is luck; the kind of luck that any championship team must have, because luck is an integral part of athletics and nothing to be ashamed of. The Warriors have been lucky in the area of injuries. Aside from the earlier incapacity of Jeff Mullins and the missing of two games in very early season by Derrek Dickey, the Warriors have been injury-free.

Even should injuries strike, however, the Warrior bench and teamwork, such as they displayed the night they beat Washington with Rick Barry virtually incapacitated due to foul trouble, should pull them through, if the injuries aren't extensive and prolonged.

Warrior teamwork was perhaps best exemplified in the fact that only Barry made the All-Star game, even though the Warriors have the second best team record in the NBA.

One of the incongruities of the NBA season thus far is the constant bleating by eastern critics that the Warriors are in the weakest division, the obvious intent being to down-grade the Warriors' record. What those critics either refuse to acknowledge or don't realize, however, is that it is Washington, the only team in the NBA with a better record than the Warriors, which is in the weakest division.

Westmoor Takes First

Jefferson Rallies to Edge SSF

By JERRY LITTRELL
Post Correspondent

Westmoor slipped into sole possession of first place while Terra Nova began its serious move towards a playoff spot to highlight North Peninsula League basketball action Friday.

The Rams, now 4-0, downed winless Half Moon Bay, 69-55, while previously undefeated South San Francisco fell to Jefferson, 73-72. Terra Nova downed Oceana, 60-42, while Serramonte ran by El Camino, 76-50.

Jefferson 73, South SF 72

Four consecutive steals led to eight straight points for Jefferson in the last 1:51 of the game as the Indians rallied from a nine-point last quarter deficit to squeeze by the Warriors in Daly City.

Down 72-65 when the spurt began, the Indians got two free throws from Jose Guamon, the game's leading scorer with 23, a steal and layin by Dan O'Shea and, after another steal, a 10-footer by Randolph Singleton to make it 72-71, South City, with 25 seconds left.

Jeff again stole the ball at halfcourt with 20 seconds remaining and Singleton drove baseline for a layin with just seven seconds left. The Warriors quickly called time out at the 0:06 mark.

The inbound pass went to guard Frank Cesarz who dribbled to the foul line, dished off to forward Marty Cattaneo but a 10-footer bank shot was too hard and the buzzer sounded before John Heise's attempted return could go in.

The Warriors were in foul trouble all night. Fouls killed their chances as they lost both their ballhandlers within the last two minutes of play.

Guard Jim Selvitella, who himself had three consecutive steals to boost the Warriors to a 70-61 lead, was tweeted to the bench at 1:51 to be followed 48 seconds later by guard Paul Bachtold. Without that ballhandling ability the Warriors couldn't handle the pressure.

Westmoor 69, HMB 55

Junior Danny Williams came off the bench in the second quarter to spark a sluggish Westmoor offense and sophomore Chris Tyeskey continued his fine offensive work to lead Westmoor to its fourth win without a loss in Daly City.

With center Maurice Pittman still hobbled by a leg injury and forward Jerry McNeil still feeling the effects of a foot problem, the Rams were slow getting started against the winless Cougars until Williams' eight-point second-quarter outburst got things in gear.

Tyeskey finished with 20 while Rob Baptista got the crowd going with a 60-foot swish shot at the third quarter buzzer.

Terra Nova 60, Oceana 42

Todd McClure hit all 12 of his points in the first half as the Tigers, struggling for a playoff position, handled Oceana on the losers' home court.

The Tigers jumped ahead by 12 in the early going then traded points until the last minutes when a final splurge made the spread 18.

Serramonte 76, El Camino

Serramonte opened the third quarter with 11 straight points to blow open a semi-tight game against the winless Colts and remain in a tie for second place.

Leading scorer Marvin Worthy was shackled with fouls early in the game and scored just nine points but the slack was taken up by senior forward Jerome Williams who popped for 24.

The winners held a 58-30 lead at halftime, then coasted to their 13th win in 18 outings.

"The first half was the best we've played all year," commented Coach Lyle Newcomer. "It was very selfless, team basketball. Our full court press worked well, and our first seven players had excellent games. If they had played the whole game, we would have scored well over 100 points."

Skyline shot 47 per cent, with Marty Gayle hitting seven of 12 from the floor for 14 points and Nick Pappageorge scoring 16 points and having seven assists.

The loss dropped Monterey's record to 2-1.

19 Teams Undefeated in DC Rec League

Seventy-nine boys basketball teams competed in last week's leagues, sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Division. The following are the results.

FOURTH GRADE NORTHERN

In second week action, Holy Angels and the LBYA Wildcats came away with victories — LBYA, led by Danny Pangalinau, and Dale Zielenski, who both scored four points. The Wildcats defeated the OLPH Chargers 20-6. The Chargers were led by Richie Bran, who scored four points.

In an action packed game, Holy Angels beat St. Andrew's 17-15. The margin of victory came on two free-throws by Greg Sigigie with only seconds remaining in the game. The game was tied earlier by Holy Angels on a clutch free-throw by Danny Joyeaux. Greg Sigigie led all scorers with 15 points, while John Madrieres led the hustling Scots with five points. OLM had the bye last week and continues play this week against the league leading Wildcats.

FOURTH GRADE WESTERN

The LBYA Globetrotters and the SAL Tigers kept their unbeaten strings intact.

Ako Poti's strong rebounding led the Globetrotters to a 20-8 victory over the OLM Whites.

Benny Stepanoff scored a league high 17 points to lead SAL to a 23-12 victory over the OLM Reds. Guy Moniz chipped in four.

In the only other game played, the LBYA Wilddogs stayed a half game off the pace defeating St. Andrew's 6-1. Donald Rawsley, Paul Griasby and Chipper Cruz eached scored two points while John Turner hit St. Andrew's lone point.

FOURTH GRADE EASTERN

The Holy Angels Greens led their division all by themselves after two weeks of play.

Holy Angels defeated the Scotties 10-8 in overtime action.

In the only other game, the Holy Angels Whites defeated SAL 18-4. Richard Mosley fired in 16 while Richard Tapachet added two. Eric Allen and Leslie Zane scored two each for SAL.

FIFTH GRADE EASTERN

In the second week of play, three games were played. Marty Carroll scored 10 points and Mike Erle added three more to pace the St. Thomas More Saints to a 16-14 win over OLM. Jim Mullen tallied six points for OLM. The game was filled with fine play, both offensively and defensively.

The St. Andrews Scots defeated LBYA 18-13. Romel Sundita was the game's high scorer with eight points. Vic Colabiachi, also of St. Andrew's, tallied four points and James Nichols of LBYA paced his team with six points.

SAL remained undefeated by beating Holy Trinity 22-0. The victors were led by Pat Gallagher and Manuel Carreon who both tallied 8 points.

FIFTH GRADE WESTERN

This division completed its second week of league play, with the St. Andrew's Scots and the OLM Reds gaining victories. In the first game, the OLM Reds led by B. J. Newsom and John McLaughlon, who both scored six points, defeated the SAL Hustlers 20-8. Phillip Matosich scored four points for the Hustlers.

St. Andrew's remained undefeated and tied for first place with OLM by defeating the PAL Tigers 25-9. The Tiger's Kevin Lono was the leading scorer with six points. It was an all-around team effort by the victorious Scots. Mike Dowd of the Scots also scored six points.

This week pits the St. Andrew's Scots and the OLM Reds who are tied for first place. The other game will be between the SAL Hustlers and the PAL Tigers who are both looking for first victory.

SIXTH GRADE EASTERN

St. Thomas More Saints overpowered the St. Andrew's Whites 26-1, in a one-sided contest. The Saints were led by the inside shooting of Mark Powers who led all scorers with 12 points. Fine play also was turned in by Mark Grider who scored six points. All the Saints played well both offensively and defensively and now must prepare for a tough game this week against the LBYA Warriors.

Holy Angels upended the St. Andrew's Greys 12-9 in a closely fought contest. Led by Michael Mitchell's six points, the Holy Angels Club was able to record its second victory without a loss.

The LBYA Warriors were able to put it all together both on offense and defense as they defeated the SAL Superstars 21-9. Fine defense by Ed Soshlik and the eight points scored by Greg Delee led the way for the Warriors' victory. Jim Shepard sank a few free-throws to spark the Superstars.

Aggressive basketball is what led in the PAL Lobos to a 20-7 victory over OLM #1. PAL was able to control the boards and make many steals. Bob Perruquet led the scoring with 12 points. Daron Jones and Ron Magee also played a good game for the Lobos.

In the 5th Grade Northern Division, the Holy Angel Rock knocked off the undefeated LBYA Lions 22-12. The Rock was led by the scoring of Sean Laughlin who tallied eight points and by Donald Reich who scored six points. LBYA was led by Tim Ohman's eight points, but his team couldn't contain the Holy Angel Club.

In a game in which the first half saw both teams fighting for the lead, the St. Andrew's Scots were able to pull ahead in the second half to defeat OLM 20-11. Mike Radanouik found the hoop for 11 points, while teammate John Silvester added four points. OLM was led by the fine playing and shooting of Sean O'Connell who scored seven points.

Joe Juarez led the Cougars with 13 points, and teammate Duy DiFranzia followed his lead by tallying seven points. Alimagnu displayed an excellent shooting eye in scoring his 13 points for his losing LBYA team.

Adrain Martin's 10 points enabled PAL to smother St. Andrews by a 37 to 23 score. Steve Putman led the losers with eight points. David Liston's excellent defense continually repelled St. Andrew's offensive attack.

A hustling SAL defense led by Keith Yancey allowed SAL to defeat OLM by a 25 to 14 count. John Fischer's seven points led the winner's attack, while Steve Kuns tallied six points in a losing cause.

SEVENTH GRADE EASTERN

In the first game, the St. Thomas More Saints remained undefeated with a 29-21 victory over the PAL Eagles. Jorge Lahiff scored 14 points and teammate Brad Hicks added six more for the victorious Saints. Rick Williams was the Eagles' leading scorer, with four points.

The second game saw the OLM Shockers defeat the hustling St. Andrew's Whites 27-18. The win by the Shockers kept them in a tie for first place with the Saints. Billy McCarthy was the leading scorer for the Shockers with six points. Strong rebounding by Chris Kanelopoulous and the overall fine play of Neil Kelly also aided the OLM victory. Jerry Cotton of the Whites led all scorers with eight points.

SEVENTH GRADE NORTHERN

Foreign Student Rates Debated

By JOHN HORGAN

For the first time in the history of the institution, it appears likely that foreign students attending classes in the San Mateo Community College District will have to pay full tuition in 1975-76.

Presently, there are 225 foreign students at the district's three colleges. They are paying two-thirds the tuition paid by non-resident U.S. students. They paid no tuition at all until two years ago.

The administration has recommended that the present foreign student tuition of $22.53 or a maximum of $676 for the year be kept in effect until it becomes 50 per cent of the non-resident figure. At that time, a two-to-one ratio is then urged thereafter.

It has been estimated that, if 225 foreign students remain in district schools in the future, it would eventually cost the district as much as $147,000 to subsidize their education here.

And therein lies the crux of the issue: money.

Three of the district's trustees have already indicated strongly that they will probably vote next week to increase tuition for foreign students to $33 per unit or a maximum for the year of $999, the same rate as that paid by out-of-district students.

The trustees — James Tormey, Robert Tarver and Francis Pearson — all argue that the present state of the economy, the condition of the district's budget and the inherent inequity in the present tuition arrangement are reasons for ending the subsidy.

Tormey emphasized this week that most of the foreign students in the district can easily afford to pay the higher tuition. Said Tormey, "These are kids from the families of their countries' ruling establishments." He added that many of those nations restrict the amount of money their students can bring into the U.S. in order to force them to come back home.

Tormey claimed that, "This district can't afford to support their problems at home, problems which are brought on by their own families."

According to Tarver, "I don't think you can hope for a continuation of this subsidy. It's insane." It is Tarver's opinion that the current practice of charging non-resident Americans full tuition while keeping the rate for foreign students low could be illegal, if it were to be tested in court. "You can't discriminate in this," Tarver said.

As far as the notion of international relations is concerned, Tormey said it is not the district's job to worry about such matters. Said he, "International relations are the function of the federal government."

Pearson stated that, "In light of the pressures in the economy, we have no choice but to seriously consider hard dollars. We have to be realistic."

It was pointed out that, of schools studied in California, only a third of them grant a subsidy to foreign students. In addition, schools charging full tuition have reported no losses in foreign student enrollments.

However, there are also arguments on the other side.

Trustee Mrs. Eleanore Nettle said the subsidy is "one way we can show people what can be done" in the business of bettering international understanding and fostering good will among nations.

Said Mrs. Nettle, "It can't all become a matter of dollars and cents. I'm proud of the opportunity that foreign students can get here. This has to be weighed in terms of human values."

She noted that, to consider these questions in isolation, was unfair to the foreign student program. She said there might well be other parts of the district's programs which have even less priority than this one.

She pointed out that foreign students had gone to district schools for 50 years before they were charged any tuition at all.

Other speakers supported many of Mrs. Nettle's points during a special meeting at the College of San Mateo.

They said that higher tuition will mean that only the wealthier students will be able to attend district schools, that the district could lose students to four-year schools, that local youngsters will miss out on opportunities to broaden their outlook through acquaintances with foreign students and that many foreign students come to America at a financial disadvantage right from the start.

Allan Brown, dean of students at CSM, told the board that the whole issue is fraught with paradoxes and dilemmas. He said there would be no easy answer.

State law does not allow districts to examine a foreign student's financial background and then charge tuition according to his ability to pay or not.

James Collins, foreign student advisor at Canada College in Redwood City, said there are enough poor students involved to make a higher tuition onerous. He agreed that there are some wealthy students who could afford full tutition.

In fact, he said, "I'm surprised my student from Kuwait didn't come up here and buy the school."

He said Venezuela is readying a plan to send 10,000 foreign students to the U.S. and pay for their education with petrodollars. There is a total of 140,000 foreign students in this country today.

This week, the board listened to arguments and a first reading of a proposed tuition plan. The board could adopt a final policy at its meeting next Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. at Skyline College in San Bruno.

San Brunan Killed

A San Bruno bartender was killed and a Burlingame woman injured early Tuesday when a pickup truck careened off Sneath Lane, slammed into a tree, rolled onto its side and burst into flames.

The dead man was identified by San Bruno police as William John Murphy, 27, 3301 Goeffrey Drive, San Bruno, a bartender at Newell's Cocktail Lounge on San Mateo Avenue.

At Peninsula Hospital is Paula Lewis, 1240 Lasuen Court, Millbrae.

The investigating officer, Bob McNichols, said the cause of the crash has not been determined. The authorities do not know who was driving the truck, McNichols said.

The truck apparently was westbound on Sneath Lane when it left the roadway just parellel to lower Clarement Drive, McNichols said.

Hilton Expansion OK Anticipated

A $4 million expansion of the Airport Hilton hotel was expected to be approved Tuesday by the San Francisco Airport Commission.

A resolution approving the proposed addition of conference, dining, and operational facilities to the present 550-room hotel has been prepared for the Commission.

The work will be done by the Hilton Inn at its own expense, and without rental credit, airport aides said.

The added facilities would be built on space Hilton already leases, and would be subject to a environmental evaluation by the San Francisco Planning Commission.

Airport Commissioners were also expected to approve a $265,000 runway improvement contract, award a $655,678 contract for taxiway guidance signs, certify completion of a $55,000 consultation contract with Metcalf & Eddy engineers for designing a deepwater outfall line.

American Airlines was to ask approval of plans to install a 30,000 gallon liquid petroleum gas storage tank, costing $70,000, on its leased property.

A number of lease modifications between the Airport and Pan American, was to be considered. These involve the office space Pan Am has used in the South Terminal, but is no longer using because of space made available in the new International Rotunda.

Council Funds OKd

Sam Eaglestaff, chairman of the San Mateo County Indian Council, Inc., announced this week the county had received some $43,700 under Title III funds of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) for employment of economically disadvantaged and unemployed native Americans.

The Indian Council has appointed Mickey Sam, Chippewa tribe of Minnesota, as administrative trainee for the program. She has lived in San Mateo County for 10 years.

The council also appointed Fred Stevens, Athabascan from Alaska,a five-year resident of the county, as employment outreach trainee.

Funds will be used to assist the economically disadvantaged, unemployed, and under-employed San Mateo residents of native American descent, Eaglestaff said.

For further information call Mickey Sam or Fred Stevens at the Daly City Community Service Center, 6497 Mission St., Daly City

Daly City Council Agrees

Funding Priorities

By FRANK LaPIERRE

A 14-member Special Advisory Committee formed last week by the Daly City City Council reached unanimous decision Thursday on where and how much to spend on community development projects.

Some $1.5 million federal money will become available over the next three years for such projects in Daly City.

The three priorities are: construction and land acquisition for a multi-use community facility and library in the Mission Street area; implementation of a housing rehabilitation program including loan supplements and guarantees to serve the older section of Daly City; and funding of day care centers in the city.

A list of nine projects were compiled by City Manager David Rowe's staff and presented to the City Council.

Councilman Paul Hupf disputed the validity of the priorities after learning Rowe's staff made up the list.

Councilman Victor Kyriakis then suggested those persons who had asked for part of the money for their projects be formed into a group to discuss the matter.

The clock runs out on applications for the windfall Feb. 15, Rowe said.

Thursday, the special group met for more than five hours in the city hall to thrash out who gets what money for what projects.

Using the city list, the group, after several heated discussions on various programs, decided on a three year outline.

While the outline can be modified during the life of the grant, it was felt by city officials the input provided by the advisory committee would be the guide for all allocations.

The first hour of the meeting centered on selection of Mike Vega as chairman, Julius Castellan as vice president and retaining the staff's professional secretary, Jo McHugh.

When the dust had settled, the group unanimously decided to remove the expansion of the Lincoln Park Clubhouse ($31,000) from the list, recommending the city follow through with the project, but using regular city channels to fund it.

Instead of committing some $140,000 to acquisition of land for "Lincoln Park," it was decided to not specify what park land acquisition the money should be used for.

Conrad Pavellas said he opposed buying land for a park if it meant someone losing his home.

And the Foster Parents were added to the list for some $6,000 total.

James Keys, of the N.A.A.C.P., called the multipurpose center "essential," because it would provide needed space for several community-wide projects such as the nutrition program and senior citizens activities.

Frank Spadarella, chairman of the projects area committee, said three groups had recommended construction of the center.

Spadarella noted, however, that all projects listed were worthy.

Rowe said the cost of construction of the facility was estimated at $1 million, far over and above money solicitated from the grant.

In the grant, Rowe asked for $645,000 to build the center.

Pavellas, the Legal Aid attorney Tom Adams argued that the three year commitment for housing — $250,000 — was insufficient.

It would take $1 million-plus to undertake the housing rehabilitation program, Pavellas said.

Castellan argued that $250,000 would be sufficient to provide "seed" money "to get the ball rolling."

Mrs. Rhina Gonzales, speaking on behalf of child care centers, said the city's recommendation they receive $12,000 plus CETA (Comprehensive Employment and Training Act) personnel "was just a token to keep us quiet."

Mrs. DeLois Black also offered a plea for funds for a day care center to be operated by her staff.

Attack on Violence In Schools Demanded

By GEORGE GOLDING

A combined attack on violence and its causes in California schools by all agencies dealing with young people was demanded Wednesday.

Reporting to Wilson Riles, State Supt. of Public Instruction, and Evelle Younger, State Attorney General, the Ad Hoc Committee on Prevention and Management of Conflict and Crime in the Schools said cooperation is the only answer.

Legislation increasing and requiring cooperation among agencies, was high on the list of goals the Ad Hoc Committee adopted in a five-hour session at the California Teachers Association headquarters in Burlingame.

Results of the committee's efforts will be drafted into final report form and submitted to Riles and Younger as a base for a legislative program and other actions.

Educators, parents, courts, police and the many welfare and probation insti- with youngsters must work together, committee reports said.

Parents must accept their responsibilities, the committee members said, and the schools, the courts and police must also accept theirs.

Some members made the point that schools are often blamed for increased violence "although there are many of other factors at work in the community.

"These students come from an environment, a society," said one report, "and the schools have no control over that society."

This was not accepted as a major theme of the committee.

Appointed by Riles and Younger nine months ago to seek solutions to the problem of growing violence on school campuses, the Ad Hoc Committee divided its work among sub-committees on agency cooperation, crisis response, school practices and climate, and the juvenile justice system.

Rather than any major overhaul of existing systems, each of the subcommittees urged increased cooperation, including housing the various juvenile justice and welfare officers under the same roof.

Sub-committee reports adopted by the Ad Hoc Committee called for legislation requiring cooperation among the schools, police departments and others involved with children.

They asked for establishment of centralized juvenile justice centers within each school district, so quick response can be made to problems of crisis to an individual or crisis to a school.

Noting that a number of attempts have been made by California school districts to meet the problem of vandalism, the committee said the most successful one calls for "live-in campus sitters."

In Elk Grove, said the subcommittee on crisis response, such a program has reduced vandalism markedly.

Several members resisted suggestions that "hardware" be provided, turning schools into armed camps, but accepted the notion of "early-warning systems a teacher could use to call attention to trouble in a classroom.

They also resisted proposals that courts and the juvenile justice system increase "detention" of youngsters who are deemed troublemakers, and called for careful consideration of the constitutional rights of youngsters students as well as teachers.

Pointing to the frequent existence of vacant classrooms in many schools today, the committee suggested that housing the various public agencies that now work with youngsters under the same school roof need not even cost money.

Only once during the series of reports was the suggestion made that the problem could be solved by money.
